

ELIZABETH J. HARRIS

Elizabeth Harris explores what Buddhism has to say about the human condition and in particular about living in a violent world.

It draws on conversations with Buddhists, Buddhist texts, the author's personal diaries and experiences to show that Buddhism in action is rarely about physical withdrawal but about engagement with the suffering of others.

Drawing on the realities of the violent ethnic conflicts in Sri Lanka, the book shows that there are no easy answers but Buddhism has much to offer to those who want to understand better the dynamics of conflict.

Elizabeth J Harris is Senior Lecturer in the Comparative Study of Religion at Liverpool Hope University and was formerly the Secretary for Inter Faith Relations for the Methodist Church of Great Britain.

978 07162 0652 1 pb 250pp £19.99

Available in all good bookshops.
Alternatively contact the publisher:

Tel: 01603 612 914 E-mail: orders@norwichbooksandmusic.co.uk
Online: www.scm-canterburypress.co.uk